VETERINARY COLLEGE, 1796.

TO THE PUBLICK.

AS the Inſtitution of the Veterinary College does not appear to be ſo generally known, as an Eſtabliſhment of ſuch publick utility, of ſuch national importance, is thought to merit, the Governors conceive that a ſhort ſtatement of its views and objects may be acceptable to thoſe who are ſtill unacquainted with it.

The extreme ignorance and incompetency of the greater part of practitioners on the diſeaſes of Horſes, called Farriers, has been long and univerſally complained of. To remedy which, and meet the evil in the moſt effectual manner, a number of Gentlemen formed themſelves into a Society for the improvement of the Veterinary Art. A large piece of ground was provided, and a range of Stables, a Forge, a Theatre for Diſſections and Lectures, and other buildings, have been erected at a conſiderable expenſe. A medical gentleman of ſuperior abilities has been appointed Profeſſor; and other officers requiſite to give due effect to the Eſtabliſhment, have been fixed at the College, at an expenſe large in the aggregate, but at ſalaries not individually greater than were conſonant to the ſtricteſt rules of economy.

The grand object of the inſtitution has been, and is, to form a ſchool of Veterinary Science, in which the anatomical ſtructure of Quadrupeds, Horſes, Cattle, Sheep, Dogs, &c. the diſeaſes to which they are ſubject, and the remedies proper to be applied, might be inveſtigated, and regularly taught; in order that, by this means, enlightened Practitioners, of liberal education, whoſe whole ſtudy has been devoted to the Veterinary Art in all its branches, may be gradually diſperſed over the kingdom, on whoſe ſkill and experience confidence may be ſecurely placed. For this purpoſe Pupils are admitted at the College, who, in addition to the Lectures and Inſtructions of the Profeſſor, and the practice of the Stables under his ſuperintendence, at preſent enjoy (from the liberal diſpoſition of ſome of the moſt eminent characters of the Faculty to ſupport and protect this Eſtabliſhment), the peculiar advantage of free admiſſion to their Medical and Anatomical Lectures. Of theſe Pupils, ſeveral have already gone from the College, and are at this time practiſing in various parts of the country, with great credit and advantage to themſelves, and benefit to their reſpective neighbourhoods. In order, however, that no doubt may ariſe reſpecting the ſufficient qualifications of Pupils upon their leaving the College, they are ſtrictly examined by a Medical Committee, conſiſting of Sir GEO. BAKER, Dr. FORDYCE, Dr. BABINGTON, Dr. BAYLEY, Dr. SANDEMAN, Mr. CLINE, Mr. CRUIKSHANKS, Mr. COOPER, Mr. HOME, Mr. ABERNEATHY, and Mr. HOULSTON, from whom they receive a proper Certificate, if they are found to have acquired a competent knowledge in the various branches of the Veterinary Science and Practice.

The following are the names of Pupils who have already received Certificates from the Committee, and are now practiſing in different parts of the Kingdom.—Meſſrs. Lawrence, Birmingham; Naſh, Cambridge; Wilkinſon, Newcaſtle; Bond, London; Field, London; Brown, Newcaſtle; Clark, Bury St. Edmond's; Thompſon, Leeds; Mills, Nottingham; Atfield, Newmarket; Smith, Farnham; Jones, Leiceſter; Baldwin, North-Walſham; Draper, Caſtle-Donington; Dean, Windſor; Spillſbury, Canterbury; Stockley, in the Army; Peale, Percival, and Turner, intended for the Army.

Subſcribers to the Eſtabliſhment have the privilege of ſending to the College their Horſes, &c. which have occaſion for medical treatment of any kind, without further expenſe than that of their daily food; and theſe, in general, form a ſufficient number of patients for the practice of the Profeſſor and his Pupils.—The Profeſſor alſo, on the days fixed by the Rules of the College, preſcribes for Horſes, &c. belonging to Subſcribers who find it inconvenient to ſpare them for admiſſion into the Infirmary, or in caſes that do not require it, provided that ſuch Medicines as are neceſſary be furniſhed and compounded at the College.—Subſcribers Horſes are likewiſe ſhod at the College-Forge at the ordinary prices.

This Inſtitution, ſo extenſive in its views, cannot be ſupported but by a large annual expenſe; and though the patronage of Subſcribers is conſiderable, as may be ſeen by the following liſt, and though Parliament, fully convinced of the propriety of the Inſtitution, and the great national benefits to be derived from it, has munificently granted a ſum laſt year in aid of the Eſtabliſhment, yet, in order to carry the objects of the Inſtitution into full effect, and ſpeedily to diſtribute ſcientifick Veterinary Practitioners into every part of the kingdom, great and unremitting efforts muſt be made, by every man who ſets a value upon his Horſe or his Dog, whether from the pleaſure or advantage he receives from him, or from his value conſidered in a pecuniary light;—by thoſe who look upon Cattle of all denominations as objects of great commercial, as well as domeſtic, importance;—and, finally, by thoſe who, from patriotic motives, are zealous to promote the welfare and proſperity of their country.

In a political point of view, this Inſtitution, if it continues to be liberally ſupported, is conſidered to be of great importance with reſpect to the Army, which muſt be ſufficiently manifeſt to every perſon who is acquainted with the preſent ſtate of the practice of Farriery in almoſt every Regiment of Cavalry; and ſo fully is his Royal Highneſs, the Commander in Chief, convinced of the utility of it, that he has been pleaſed to appoint a Board of General Officers to take the Inſtitution into conſideration, who have reported, that the loſs of horſes continually accruing to the Cavalry is very heavy, owing to the total ignorance of thoſe who have at preſent the medical care of them; and that this Eſtabliſhment is likely to afford the means of eſſential improvement to this part of the Military Service, and thereby ultimately be the means of a conſiderable ſaving to the Publick; and which his Majeſty has been graciouſly pleaſed to approve.

Annual Subſcribers pay 2l. 2s. ℔ Ann. but a Subſcription of Twenty Guineas at one payment, conſtitutes a Subſcriber for Life.

SUBSCRIPTIONS are received by Meſſrs. RANSOM, MORLAND, and Co. Bankers, Pall Mall; and at
